Mr. Brandon Williams As an Air Force avionics technician, I lived a pretty routine life. After three years of the same routine, my younger brother, James Williams Jr., introduced me to LegalShield. I didn't immediately understand the business model, but the membership made sense. So I simply replied, "If you would shut up, I will sign up."

In December 2003, I started my LegalShield business, and nine days after signing my business agreement, I received military orders to leave the country. This halted my business for 13 months.

In January 2005, I attended my first Super Saturday. At this event I heard the statement that changed my life and the course of my business. Mr. Brian Carruthers said, "For things to change, you have to change."

I sold my first membership that month and went on a crash course to educate myself about the company and its history. I qualified as an Executive Director two months later, and just three months after that, I left the U.S. Air Force. LegalShield has allowed me to travel and move and my income continues to grow. I was blessed to find my beautiful wife because of this opportunity. I give a special thanks to my mentors and friends, the late Mr. Dave Savula and Mrs. Bev Savula
